WELCOME TO THE TRIAL OF POWER

The day Zinha is inducted into the Baleful, an assassin guild spoken of only in whispers, she is chosen for a dangerous assignment.

The King wishes to invade the neighbouring country of Maetora, but he must first neutralise their ruler – and her dangerous magic. Zinha infiltrates The Trial of Power, a competition during which the Maetoran Heir chooses his consort. As a contestant, Zinha must seduce the Heir, uncover his mother's secrets and topple their kingdom from within. But Heir Reyher is not what she expected, and neither are the Maetorans. Especially Mateo, a fellow contestant with his own secrets and plans for the future.

As Zinha gains more distance from the darkness of her previous life, doubts begin to surface about everything she's been told. When rumours of a rival assassin threaten her success – and the lives of the people she has come to love – Zinha is forced to choose between the powerful bonds of her past and the fragile hope of an unexpected future. Because time is running out, and the Baleful live by only one rule: Succeed or Die.

THE TRIAL OF POWER duology will conclude with THE OATH in early 2026.

About the Author

Bronwyn has been doing two things since childhood: writing and fighting. As a fantasy author, she looks for opportunities to incorporate her martial arts experience into her stories. Before being published, Bronwyn was in the military, studied Linguistics at university, worked in the book and travel industries, and continues to travel excessively.

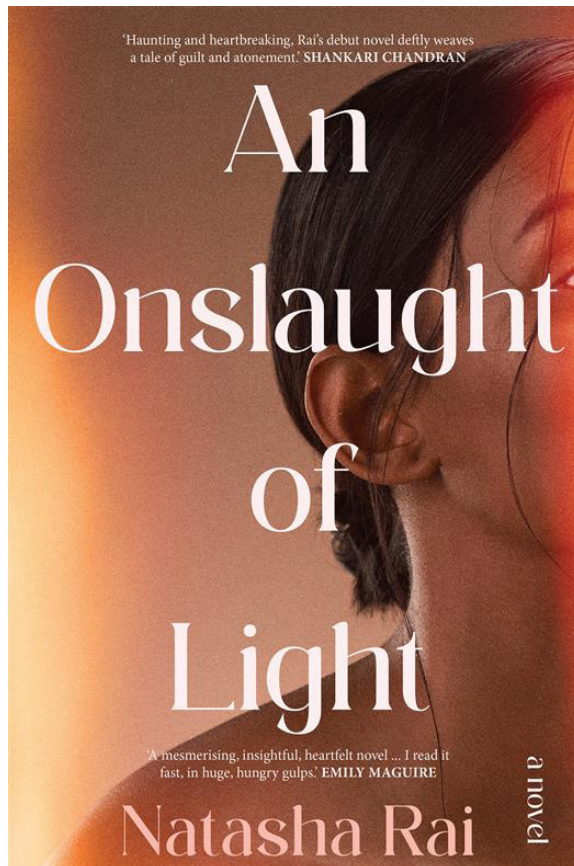

Originally from Sydney, Bronwyn now lives in Edinburgh and confirms she does like haggis.

'Warning! This book contains intrigue, action, danger, assassins, romance and political machinations. Side effects include a lack of sleep and avoiding social situations to read.'

Maria V Snyder, NY Times bestselling author
'With atmospheric world-building, compelling characters, and a romance that kept me guessing, Eley has created my next new fantasy obsession.'

Jo Riccioni, author of The Branded Season duology
'Fierce, passionate and utterly captivating, Bronwyn Eley creates characters I'd willingly follow into the parched dunes of the Maetorian desert, and anywhere else in The Rule's immersive fantasy world. A must-read for fans of The Final Strife and Poison Study.'

Elle Machray, author of Remember, Remember

In 1990, Vijay and Indu leave India for Australia, seeking a better life for their family. But the move isn't easy on anyone. Not gentle Indu who becomes disconnected from her family and her life; nor the ambitious Vijay, who finds himself unmoored in a culture he doesn't understand. At the centre is Archana, their quiet daughter, for whom a growing understanding of her own queerness grates against the realities of her life.

Years later, Arch lives her ideal solitary, isolated life. When her brother calls to say that Vijay is unwell and needs her help, Arch has no choice but to re-enter the world. Using her pain as a shield from connection, Arch goes about her family duty. But a chance meeting leads to the potential of a new start – if only she is willing to take a risk and let in some light.

'Haunting and heartbreaking, Rai's debut novel deftly weaves a tale of guilt and atonement. The ghost of grief lingers through every page, and the trauma of the past is ever present. And yet, An Onslaught of Light is just that – a powerful journey from alienation to connection, from loneliness to love, from darkness to light.'

Shankari Chandran, Miles Franklin winner

About the Author

Natasha, an Indian-Australian woman, was born in India, migrating to Australia with her parents at the age of ten. She lived in the UK for several years as an adult, and the influence of three homes features in her writing.

Her work has appeared in Australia's first #MeToo anthology, Enough, about gender violence, Overland, Verity La, StylusLit, and New-York based Adelaide magazine. Her first novel, An Onslaught of Light, was longlisted for the 2017 Richell Prize, the 2018 KYD Unpublished Manuscript award, and was highly commended for the Ultimo Press/Westwords 2020 Prize.

An Onslaught of Light is a mesmerising, insightful, heartfelt novel about grief, belonging and the sometimes unbearable weight of expectations. The writing is so assured, the characters so real and the emotional tension so expertly sustained that it's hard to believe this is Natasha Rai's debut novel. I read it fast, in huge, hungry gulps and finished it knowing that Arch, Indu, Vijay and Sunny will be with me for a very long time. Exquisite.

Don't get mad. Get hot – and get even.

When Jeremy is invited to the 10-year reunion of his prestigious writing program, his life is a horrible mess. He's a pop-culture journalist with no money, he's permanently single and he now has to face his cheating ex-boyfriend – the reunion's guest of honour.

Like any well-adjusted individual, Jeremy develops a revenge plan: try and fix his life by becoming super hot and successful and, most importantly, find a handsome and successful boyfriend to bring to the reunion.

Enter Sam – irritatingly perfect, disgustingly hot and generous to a fault – who agrees to help with Jeremy's scheme. At first Jeremy is pretty sure that he's straight. But when Sam suggests they start fake-dating each other, the simmering tension between them threatens to boil over. Now Jeremy must choose between nursing his grudges and giving himself another chance at love.

Will Jeremy get his happily ever after, in spite of everything?

About the Author

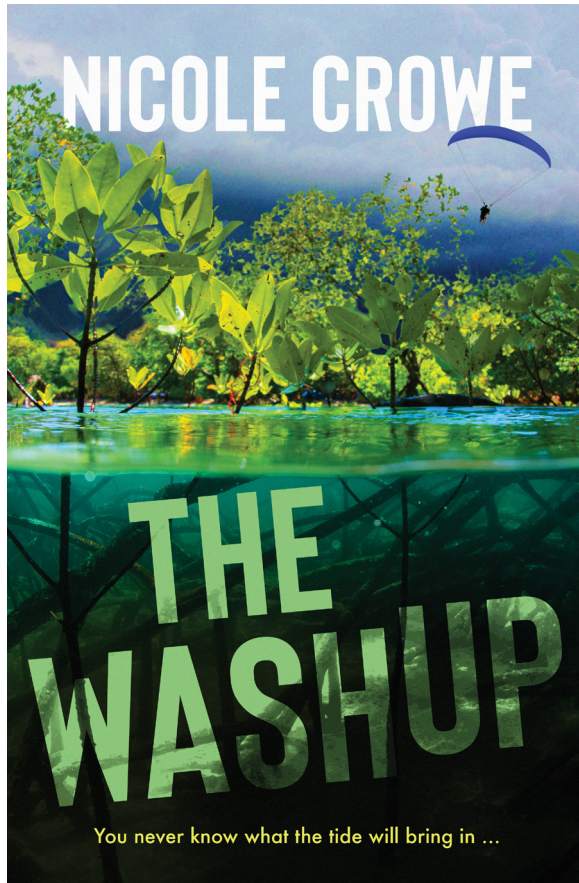

Patrick Lenton is a journalist and writer living in Melbourne. He is the author of three books, including the recent Sexy Tales of Paleontology. He is a regular arts and culture commentator in the media, having appeared on The Project, ABC's The Mix, ABC Breakfast and more. He is an anchor guest on ABC Sydney's Culture Chatter and ABC Melbourne, as well as regular slots on ABC RN, Statewide Drive, ABC Tropical North and more. His independent publication, Nonsense, covers comedy and queer news and culture.

'Romantic, sharply observed, and wickedly funny, In Spite of You is the perfect rom-com for people who love love – and also love the delicious pleasure of holding a really good grudge.'

Jodi McAlister

'What a breath of fresh air to read a book like this, that's as clever and funny as it is full of vulnerability and heart. Patrick Lenton astutely observes modern culture and romance through the lens of someone who's been through it all. These characters are the people we all love to hate, or hate to love – and ultimately, love does win.'

A tragic accident in paradise ... or a calculated crime?

After her parents' death in a car crash two years ago, Eve is back in the tumbledown family house on Magnetic Island, surrounded by nosy neighbours, an over-friendly possum and a cast of eccentric locals.

All Eve has left is her sister Tilly – not that she's seen much of her lately, between Tilly's history of disastrous relationships and her tendency to drink too much. And when Eve is introduced to her new boyfriend Matt, a sky-diving instructor and dead ringer for a young Richard Gere, she senses trouble.

Shortly after, a skydive goes wrong and Eve is left with a mountain of unanswered questions. Matt is the prime suspect as far as she is concerned, but proving it is another matter ... especially after the cops rule it an accident. It doesn't help when Eve's ill-advised sleepover with Shane, the local cop, goes catastrophically wrong.

In trying to solve one mystery, Eve will uncover a far deeper secret hidden in the rocky outcrops of Magnetic Island – and put her own life on the line.

About the Author

Nicole Crowe grew up in Nelly Bay on Magnetic Island in a little wooden house built by her father. The beauty and strangeness of the island, combined with her brother's former profession as a skydive tandem master, provided the inspiration for The Washup. Nicole still lives in Far North Queensland, but on the mainland, with her family, four chickens and a large neighbourhood python.

In a world that withholds knowledge from them, four young women decide to steal it back.

At Oxford University, 1928, four young women make a secret pledge:

'I hereby undertake to read any book kept away from nice young ladies and make up my own mind whether it is good for me or not.'

They've come to Oxford from the corners of the British Empire to start their degrees: bricklayer's daughter Annie, wealthy flapper Ridley, refined Parsi aristocrat Dorelia and disheartened schoolteacher Norma.

Bonded by their secret histories of stolen books, they embark on their own clandestine education through banned and 'inappropriate' books at late night meetings. The illicit society rapidly becomes a lifeline in a world where women are fed lies and half-truths to keep them obedient. What they read about sex, power and inequality bleeds into real life, shaping their choices and exposing devastating truths about their struggles and aspirations.

In a world where all privilege is stolen, can four young women reclaim what was never theirs to begin with?

About the Author

Sasha Wasley was born and raised in Perth, Western Australia. She completed a PhD in feminist literature at Murdoch University in 2006, and went on to work as a copywriter on topics ranging from mine safety to sex therapy.

Sasha's debut novel was published in 2015, after which she gave up her copywriting business to pursue her fiction writing career. She is the author of three novels.

Sasha is passionate about levelling the playing field for members of the community experiencing disadvantage. She is an Ambassador for the Books in Homes Australia charity which provides books of choice for children in disadvantaged circumstances to keep in their home libraries. Today, she lives and writes in the Perth hills region with her partner and two daughters.

'A spellbinding read about a secret society of women at Oxford in the 1930s who take their love of books into their own hands. Written by a master storyteller, Society is perfect for readers of The Bookbinder by Pip Williams and The Keeper of Stories by Sally Page, and transports readers to a moment in time when the world was changing rapidly, but not quickly enough.'

An Aboriginal football star, an Indian talent manager, and a Caucasian drag queen walk into a bar... No, it's not the setup to a problematic joke, but rather the beginning of a sizzling three-way romance. As our unlikely trio falls for each other, we see them redefine love and relationships for the mainstream.

The Odd Throuple is a bold and emotionally rich contemporary adult fiction novel that delves into the complexities of love, sex, and non-traditional relationships. Set against the polarised backdrops of Australia's sports, queer, and media worlds, the story centres around a love triangle between AFL star Davo "Pecs" Hamilton, successful agency executive Priya Kapoor, and drag podcast influencer Courtney Dahling. The three meet at the Gods of the Game Calendar launch, where an instant connection sets the stage for a three-way love story fueled by the thrill of breaking the rules.

Through alternating points of view, the novel not only explores the chemistry between the three leads but also tackles larger societal taboos around polyamory; the intersections of race, culture, and queerness; toxic masculinity; and how straight-identifying men can explore their non-heteronormative desires. It examines how gender and identity influence personal and romantic relationships, challenging conventional ideas about love.

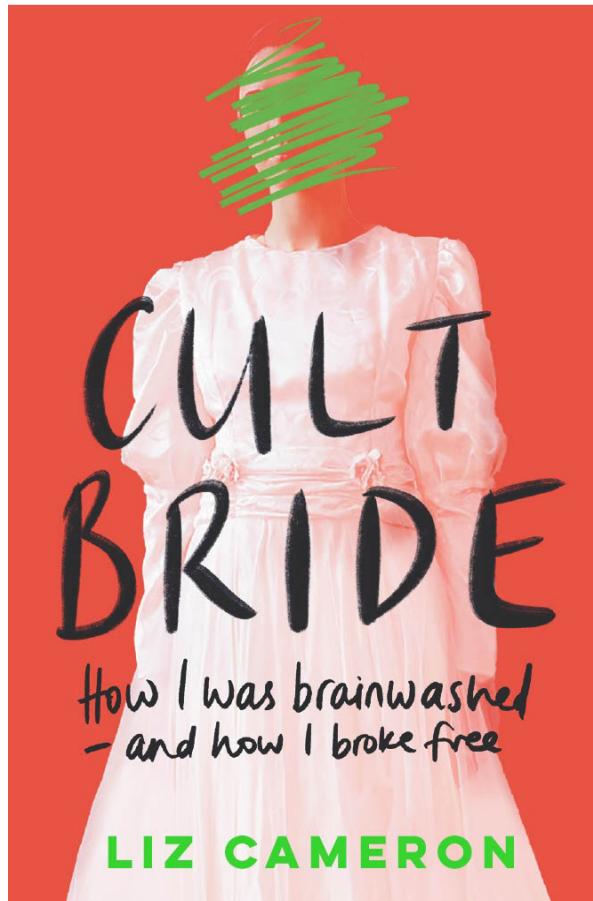

About the Author

Shane Jenek aka Courtney Act is a drag artist, singer, advocate and cultural provocateur. She has appeared on reality TV in Australia and overseas, including her breakout in 2003 on the first season of Australian Idol; making the Top 3 on RuPaul's Drag Race Season 6; and taking the UK by storm on Celebrity Big Brother, which she won. When Courtney isn't busy being glamorous on TV and stage, she's a boy from Brisbane called Shane Jenek.

As a gender-fluid, queer person, Courtney uses her public profile to educate audiences on issues such as gender identity, sexuality, marriage equality, anti-racism and more. As a singer-songwriter she has released a pop EP and entertained audiences in her cabaret shows throughout the world. She currently splits her time following Pride parades and chasing summer between London, Los Angeles and Sydney.

As an 18-year-old on a gap year in Canberra, Liz was approached at a shopping centre by a woman who, unbeknown to her, was a recruiting agent for Providence, a Christian cult that originated in South Korea and currently operates in 72 countries. As a new adult, Liz was struggling to navigate the world and her identity, and as cults do so skilfully, they took advantage of her vulnerability.

After months of indoctrination, things escalated: Liz moved in with the cult, was cut off from friends and family, and was eventually appointed to the status of 'bride' to the cult's serial rapist leader, Jeong Myeong-Seok (JMS). She travelled to South Korea to visit JMS in prison and stayed at the cult's extravagant compound.

Upon her return to Australia, Liz was controlled and starved, and underwent a severe physical and mental decline. It was only through the intervention of her parents and professional deprogrammers that she managed to escape.

In Cult Bride, Liz takes us behind the scenes of a terrifying cult to show us how they operate in plain sight – and how we can unpick the systems that enable them to prey on vulnerable people.

About the Author

Liz Cameron grew up in fundamentalist Christianity and was brainwashed into the JMS cult at age 18 in 2011. Since escaping in 2013, she's worked on slowly rebuilding her life while also helping to raise awareness of cults and assist in deprogramming other cult victims. She now resides in Canberra and balances full-time professional work with cult awareness and advocacy, while also studying a psychology degree.

An extraordinary true story about how one woman was broken down by a secretive, predatory cult – and how she broke free and remade her life.

Four Women's Stories of Why They Left - or Why They Stayed

Is love enough? In Torn, four women face the biggest decisions of their lives.

Anna is in her early seventies and met her future husband when they were 12 years old. One day, Anna's daughter handed her a card from another woman.

Kate is in her mid-fifties. Her husband gave Kate her dream family, and for her kids, she tolerated his drinking and affairs. But then he started gambling away their futures.

Liana, in her mid-forties, was in a series of abusive relationships before she finally met a man who seemed 'normal'. Then she spotted the signs of addiction she knew all too well.

Amanda, in her mid-thirties, and her husband were childhood sweethearts. She found out he'd been visiting sex workers since their wedding – then she met the love of her life.

Torn is an intimate, compelling exploration of the age-old question: to stay in an unhappy relationship, or to leave? This book is about four women in moments of crisis – and what they chose to do next.

THE MENOPAUSE METHOD | Michelle Bridges

The Menopause Method is a holistic approach to managing menopause, combining science-backed information, practical strategies, and a supportive community. We focus on key areas like sleep, hot flashes, bone health, sex, relationships, exercise, weight management, mood swings, anxiety, and cardiovascular health. Basically, if it's a part of menopause, we've got it covered.

Why did I create this method? Simple. I was tired of seeing women suffer in silence, being fed misinformation, and feeling like menopause was the end of the road. It's not. It's a new beginning. I dug into the research, consulted with experts, and tested different approaches until I found what works. The result? A program that helps women thrive.

Let's talk about the elephant in the room—symptoms. Hot flashes, night sweats, mood swings, weight gain... sound familiar? These are the joys of menopause (note the sarcasm), but they don't have to control your life. Understanding why they happen is the first step in kicking them to the curb.

So, are you ready to take charge and transform your menopause experience? Let's do this! We're just getting started, and I promise you, the best is yet to come.

About the Author

Co-founder and owner of the 12 Week Body Transformation (12WBT program), Michelle mixes her years of training and experience with heart-warming compassion, winning the hearts and minds of Australians of all ages, fitness levels and genders.

Michelle is one of Australia's most influential personal trainers, a best-selling fitness, nutrition and mindset author and a national commentator on health and wellness issues. Michelle is the author of seventeen books, including her latest release 12WBT Low-Carb Solution.

Michelle is fast becoming an advocate and a voice for women going through menopause. In 2024 Michelle launched 'The Menopause Method' within 12WBT. A specific program for women, providing a platform of knowledge and assistance with health, wellbeing and nutrition, who are going through peri-menopause and menopause.

Michelle has enjoyed an extensive media career, best known as the straight talking trainer across many series of Channel Ten's ratings heavyweight The Biggest Loser and regularly features across a variety of different mediums including TV and radio.

Em Rusciano has had a big few years. From a watershed 2019 – having left breakfast radio, given birth to her third child and staged her sold-out Rage and Rainbows tour – Em went into the forced self-reflection of Covid lockdowns and she felt it all with full force: anger and burnout, alongside hard-won moments of joy and creativity. It was only when she received later-in-life diagnoses of ADHD and Autism that all of this clicked into place. Well, her whole life did, really.

By peeling back layers of Em’s experience as a neurodivergent (ND) person, including raising three ND children, Blood, Sweat and Glitter tells of Em’s personal journey to living on her own terms. The book will include Em’s reflections on her viral 2022 National Press Club Address about her ADHD diagnosis and her contribution to the 2023 ADHD Senate inquiry.

In Em’s own words, ‘This is a memoir, sure, but Blood, Sweat and Glitter is also an anxiety - and rage-fuelled treasure map to understanding neurodiversity, menopause and what it means to be a “woman of a certain age” in modern society.’

About the Author

Em Rusciano is a writer, singer, keynote speaker, comic and podcaster. Her podcast Emsolation was Australia’s first ever Spotify Exclusive, and her 15-date Outgrown comedy tour took Australia by storm in 2024. Em’s 2016 bestselling book Try Hard was released to acclaim, and her self-narrated audiobook was nominated for ABIA Audiobook of the Year. Em has a fierce, loud and passionately loyal social media community, with a combined following on Facebook and Instagram of more than half a million.

‘It’s been nearly a decade since readers last heard Em tell her story in book form, and I’m thrilled that she’s returning to the page with Pantera. Told in Em’s inimitable voice, Blood, Sweat and Glitter is a must-read for her hugely engaged fans, readers of personality-driven memoir and educational books about the neurodivergent experience.’
